For younger children this is a good chance to make new friends and to ease into group activities. For adults story time is also an opportunity to encounter new books, rhymes and songs for sharing at home.

Common Sense Media

CommonSenseMedia.org is a website dedicated to providing information and education about media and technology. The organization that created this website is non-partisan and not-for-profit. Its main goal is to help parents and families manage kids' media lives. On this website you'll find reviews for movies, websites, games, television and music.
